Try a Red Lip

There's a reason pros love this shade for their celeb clients: "It brightens your skin and makes your teeth look whiter," says makeup artist Lisa Storey, who works with Natalie Portman. For maximum vibrancy, she says to use a lip brush to apply three layers of color. Fix any smudges with concealer on a pointed brush.

Get an All-over Glow

A fast way to perk up pasty, dull skin? Sunless tanning wipes. These are foolproof, and the results are so natural, people will think you just got back from vacation. For extra sparkle, top off your "tan" with a spritz of shimmer.

Exfoliate before you self-tan to prevent streaking

Find Your Perfect Highlighter

Some highlighters can look too intense while others barely show up. These powders—which you can mix and match on eyes and cheeks—have just the right amount of pigment and sheen, plus they're easy to blend with your fingers. We especially love the champagne color on cheekbones and in the inner corners of the eyes.

Use a Primer

A good primer minimizes the appearance of pores and fine lines, and it's great for the holiday party season because it keeps your makeup looking fresh for hours. (This gel formula has been a bestseller since it launched in 2000.)

Rock a Headband

This accessory is everywhere right now. "It adds a little sparkle without competing with your outfit," says hair pro Justine Marjan, who chose this embellished Roxy Jacenko style ($70; pixiespix.com.au) for Ashley Graham. Wear it with a sleek bun for a sophisticated look.

Do a Statement Mani

Instead of playing it safe, try something unexpected, like glittery sapphire. Since a bold color draws more attention to your hands, do an at-home hydrating treatment before applying polish. Make it last (chips are extra noticeable with a dark shade) by using a top coat every other day.
